CALENDAR OF EVENTS

2026 IFHE World Congress offers front row seat for global exchange of healthcare facilities next-generation solutions

Since 2010, Darryl Pitcher, a high-ranking healthcare executive in Australia, has had a front-row seat to opportunities the International Federation of Healthcare Engineering (IFHE) World Congress affords its host country. Through participation in events in Argentina and the Netherlands, and as a host of the 2018 World Congress in Australia, the IFHE past president has seen that “despite differences in voltage and water quality and temperature and climate and other factors, there’s a lot of commonalities across healthcare, regardless of where care is being delivered.”

Innovative ideas and best practices are not confined by borders, according to Pitcher. By attending the 2026 IFHE World Congress in New Orleans, U.S. healthcare professionals have an unparalleled opportunity to gain “insight on a range of issues including environmental sustainability, safety, quality, emerging technologies and global trends” from peers already putting next-generation solutions in place in countries around the world.
